LOCATION

Ampelia is a semi-mountainous village located on the eastern foothills of the southern Pindos mountain range, west of Kalambaka and close to the famous Meteora region. The settlement lies at an average altitude of approximately 390 metres and enjoys a peaceful natural environment with easy access via the Kleino–Mourgkani provincial road. The surrounding area is characterised by low-density residential development consisting primarily of detached houses and small two-storey buildings. The local economy is traditionally based on agriculture and livestock farming, while the wider Meteora region benefits from increasing tourism activity. The property is located approximately 50 metres from the village church and benefits from unrestricted parking availability and easy vehicular access.
